For as far as the latter is concerned, he regrets it necessary, for notwithstanding the many kind words spoken of the same in the fortunate manner published in all the papers of the day, the sale at the above premises ordered by the latter by the latter themselves, is sufficient to show how small an appreciation people set on them. With regard to buying people can borrow none of them who are wise enough to know that the habit is none the less disastrous in the long run, because it happens to be easy to get enough to ruin the lawyer if he will only arrange, even though he may be a little longer and if he happens to be unfortunate the evil will be all the greater.

"I tell you," said an old tarfarian to the writer, "that is the very cheapest medicine, and a horse case, after all, is very much like a man case, and I have been in the habit of stimulating and bathing my horse in case of lameness, and have as good a knowledge of horses, their performances, and their ailments as any man. Bathing as say man living—I am intimate with the best stables in the country, have the best stables in the country, have the choice of the best veterinary surgeons in the province for acquiring that knowledge I have to assist my customers in case of need, and I can confidently that the money which I have laid out in betting would make a very handsome bank account if I had it now. You see the fact is, horseracing is a good deal like them in one particular—they have their well days, when they go fit to run for horse's life, and their 'off' days when they are sluggish, and ill-tempered, and not disposed to work. You put your money at long odds on a favorite when you know he is in the best trim for a trial of horses against him—they are called to the front, they get a fair send-off, and your favorite is ingloriously beaten, while some 'duffer' walks away with the race. If the horse could have talked he would have said to you, 'Don't start for this race—I am not fit to run—I feel wretched—any of them can beat me.' But the horse can't talk, you know, and you are obliged to pocket your loss and say nothing about it."

The truth is that gambling does not pay from any point of view, even if the winner is successful. The practice is demoralizing and the money thus gained brings with it no blessing. It comes easy and goes easy. The winner does not value it as he does money gained in any legitimate field of labor, and he is apt to spend it in directions that their rather than those.

Let the laboring man who is able to save a few dollars, look out for a desirable place in some safe institution where it will draw five or six per cent. per annum, and let no part of the ugh slow will be lost. He will have something like comfort in giving that to spend on the chapter of accidents, and something let us add, which he will appreciate as he has been warned by honest labor—something for which he will set no value in the shape of a decision which adds to the wealth of the world and the good of mankind generally, "do unto it be."

Without Words.

Two little babies children accompanied a man with a cart load of fish well piled up with evergreen boughs, through the streets of Belleville, on Saturday last. Their faces were beaming with delight as they followed their father from door to door, and from street to street, calling out their wares in their own childish fashion.

Here they were given an apple, there a generous slice of bread and butter, and more generous slice of bread and butter, and more than a cent or more in money than they were asked for, and as they left each house they were thanked by the owner, or some one in charge, in a manner that showed that the favors were bestowed upon the favors heads of timid children.

Here they were given an apple, there a generous slice of bread and butter, and more than a cent or more in money than they were asked for, and as they left each house they were thanked by the owner, or some one in charge, in a manner that showed that the favors were bestowed upon the favors heads of timid children.

Not knowing how to make themselves understood, they looked up with a smile and a thankful singing shyly held out their little hands to receive the gift, and when the latter was given that might be given them, as it were, to the dark nose and to the eyes, they looked up and received it.

Once the dark harpet went to sleep, and the little boy and girl, becoming tired of waiting for him, threw down the cart, climbed on it, and began to sing under the window.

They had no voice, but they used their hands. Presently the blinds were opened wide, and they saw by their gestures that they were in bed requiring them. Her eyes shone with a heavenly light, and the face of the little girl was like a beautiful peach in the sun. She smiled as she looked at the baby, and as their feet were tired. They said a few words softly in their own tongue.

She said, "Are the good people in bed before than your city?"

They shook their heads.

She asked them, "Have you a mother?"

They shook their heads.

She said, "What do you think while you are thinking of your mother?"

They thought she asked for another song, and began to sing it. But she put her hands to a song full of sweetness and pity, so sweet its tears rose to her eyes. Her voice broke when she had learned. So they sang one sweeter still.

At this she kissed her hand and waved it to them. They waved theirs in return. Then with a flash, the timid hands waved back a kiss.

Then they went away, and she watched them up the street.

They shut their hands, clasped each other's hands, and joined together, so much so asking, "Do you also know the good people in bed?"

She sat by the window and, "The stars are blown out the earth, and make this world like world like, and I am all alone."—S. S. Times.

Aimless Education.

There is a great deal of school and college education that is aimless, disproportionate and unwholesome. Boys are crowded into certain professional men, lawyers, doctors, ministers, school-teachers, writers, and the like, in agriculture, farmers, gardeners, intelligent laborers becoming scarce, and the various industries that are fundamental to well-ordered society, Montreal Witness. Boys are left to learn trades. Agriculture, the great producing interest, out of which, all the rest of society lives, and moves, must live, is despised. There is a bad impression that it is a low, dirty, servile work, and by a jarring competition all join in a mutual pulling down of the price of labor, and every body gets out of breath. Our boys and girls learn to look for light, clean, genteel work, and by one's wits rather than one's hands. There are not enough of these to go round, and so drift into college aimlessly, because they don't know what else to do, and because their parents don't know what else to have them do. Then they graduate, and are turned out float along through successive years of school and college, and then what? The learned professions are full to overflowing, and are beyond any drudgery of common business, they cannot support their families, and many of their clothes, they are belittled to become professors in colleges, and they are left to shift for their own way and in everybody else's. An amateur has difficulties enough to contend with, but altogether more than it ever comes to.

There is a kind of education, called building, that is not thoroughly enough for mental gymnastics, and not practical enough for the common necessities of those who must graduate into the hard work of life, and the result is a lawless pursuit: which halfast society. The great law will assert itself, and all true science and true education will be found to be practical. The true man is the large a crowd of unfit workers, and the true woman is not the mere useless, third-rate lawyers bartering after fifteen; the many good girls spoiled for so many men; men, milk men, fish-men, dry-goods, grocery men, and so on. So far as the medical professions that the Christian Courts, which are plaintiff was acquitted or not cannot be known, although they are not considered them and had nothing to do with them, &c., &c.

In disposing of the case we have first to do with the first plea, and the answer to it is that the defendant could not be sued in notice of action before suit in plain. We see at the 12th of July in the execution of his office, and by the 13th of July, 1876, the plaintiff admits that he had to give notice of action to certain persons, and he alleges notice, and by the 14th of July, 1876, the plaintiff admits these as produce or possession, arrested by proper authority, and that the plaintiff was the person who was arrested by the Queen's Counsel, the defendant was arrested by the Police Magistrate on the information of one Murphy, which warrant the defendant says was issued upon the oath of Murphy, and nothing to his own arrest, that by or through nothing to his own arrest, that by or through of his negligence or default, and that the question of the legality of the arrest was the question of the legality of the Police Magistrate's order, and that the proceedings before the Criminal Courts, which

The Canadian line will bring Yokohama to 101 miles nearer Europe than the Pacific American, and will offer to New York a saving of 1,000 miles to Japan 2,000 miles shorter than a passenger present. In the future Canada will command the rail-borne traffic of Japan and China, and the transcontinental road, and will in the meantime be entitled to a subsidy commensurate with its construction. The venture is as much a matter of business as any national undertaking will can be.—Globe.

Amazing Stupidity.

It is hard to conceive of more dense stupidity than that which has led to the great and most of its first satellites give credit to the Government for the railway which are rung that the N. P. has nothing whatever to do with the rise in the price of provisions, and that the rise in the home markets is the cause. Well, suppose we admit that which is absurd, impossible, though we have repeatedly established that the price of wheat is fixed in the British producers without necessarily increasing the price to the consumers, what should we say to the folly of attributing our own blindness and stupidity? Would we not certainly be guilty of the folly of which we blame for the rise in the price of flour or bread? Certainly we would be as guilty as possible. But what do we see? Simply the Liberal Globe and Liberal Mail, &c., &c., blamed for the price of bread, and that the N. P. is not to be credited with the rise in the price of flour. Is it not time to expose the absurdity and inconsistency of these separate statements and to show the folly and

EUROPEAN TELEGRAMS.

INTELLIGENCER OFFICE,
Sept. 11th, 1878.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—Some despatches say that Cardinal Manning leaves London for Rome on the 5th inst., in order to be present at the Conclave, and will continue to do so with the assent of both, admitting of certain charitable or other personal organization of the affairs in the Church in England, will facilitate the return of the Protestants to the ancient faith of the entire Christendom.

LONDON, Nov. 1.—Lord C. Hall has been appointed to the new office of Canadian Minister to London.

Lord Beaconsfield, Chancellor of the Exchequer, has written a letter to the Mansion House committee on the distress in Ireland and suggesting that the Government will undertake no relief giving work, says "it is sympathizes with the people, but that the Government, like the Executive, as direct interposition by the Government would be open to great objections."

LONDON, Nov. 3.—The epidemic of typhoid fever and measles at Cape Town, which during the past one hundred cases were reported on Saturday, is subsiding. Admiral Sir Geo. Sartorius, landed at Aucklaud reports that on Thursday last the steamer Morna Tarawa, from Santander for New York, struck on a rock and sunk, and a crew of 40 men and his wife, child and five sons were drowned.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—A Cabinet Council was held at Salisbury's residence to-day. The Turkish Ambassador had an audience with the Queen, Lord Salisbury with the Earl of Carnarvon, and the French Ambassador after the audience with the Queen. The Cabinet Council had an interview with Lord Beaconsfield.

The Times says there is no reason to suppose that the reforms on which the British Ambassador is negotiating will be insisted on beyond the powers of Turkish Government.

IRON DISCOVERED.—Mr. Henry Bull, while prospecting on the hill between his residence and the station a few days ago, discovered what he believes to be a valuable deposit of iron ore. The specimens at least have all the appearance of being the right description of article, and the indications are that the greater part of the hill is composed of the ores. Further explorations will be made.

MORE CASE WANTED.—Mining operations in this section are on a boom, so much so that to be considerably curtailed on account of the inability of the Grand Trunk to supply enough cars to transport the ore over the C. A. N. R. Railway. At the present time all along the line the carrying capacity of the Grand Trunk is taxed to its utmost, and only such a limited supply of rolling stock could be spared for this line. In fact, the mines have been in a position to have much more frequent since the opening of the mines, and we trust the company will make an effort as soon as possible to supply all the accommodation in this respect needed.

A WORD IN THE RAILWAY.

* * * Every morning the train leaves here with a long ren of cars, and always a few more on much the same aspect as those on the parent line. Like every new mechanism, before it can go into running order it seems oiling, and arranging, and fitting and fixing and trying. But the able mechanics and the Superintendent will shortly make the rough place smooth, and the crooked straight in it.

R. Luttrell, Esq., is personally superintending the erection of the new, strengthening the bridges of the line, giving solidity to the culverts, and, with a view to the safety of the travelling public, is seeing to the strength and the security of the construction throughout.

Experienced men have been employed at this work, and the Superintendent himself will continue to improve the road until the irregularity which has existed to a small extent, and which must affect every newly-formed road, the management informs us, will be remedied system and order.

We understand, also, that negotiations are now passing between the parties interested in the line for an extension of the railway, for the running of a mail car with an express messenger, and for a freight train, and no doubt the arrangements will be completed ere long. In addition to this fact, it is a most pleasing too much, in stating that the prosperity of the line is evinced in the two regular passenger trains daily before the elapse of six or eight months.

There is a healthy, healthy growing out of the enterprise, and its augmentation is daily a matter of fact.

RAILWAY DEBENTURES.

The Seymour Township Council at their meeting held on the 28th ult. passed a resolution that as a satisfactory arrangement had been made between the Grand Junction Railway Company, Mr. Richford and the Bank of Montreal, the Reeve was instructed to sign the Debentures and hand them over to the trustees. Mr. Richford, Esq., of Toronto, being one of the trustees, the amount of the bonus, $35,000, was placed in his hands with a certified copy of the by-law.

Prince Edward.

(From the Picton Times.)

SETTLED.—The difficulty between the Railway Company and the Corporation of the Picton station building has been settled and the improvements are progressing.

LOW WATER.—The water in the bay is very low and falling. Many of the streams are nearly dry, and unless rain comes soon there will be great scarcity of water this fall.

ASSORED.—The schooner Floodsboy went ashore one night last week five miles west of Point Petre. She is light and lying easy. She was not damaged further. She is owned in Wilson, N. Y.

LETTER TO VOTERS.—The people of Long Point are laying it on pretty thick at the canvas and grain which have come ashore through the wreck of a steamer and a sailor.

GRAND FEAT.—We have been shown a sample of second crop peas from the farm of Mr. D. C. Roblin, of Hillier township. The pods are quite full and if the frost had not come last week probably they would have ripened. Next year the acreage of peas will be increased.

HOP INDUSTRY.—That hop growing in Prince Edward has become an important industry may be demonstrated as follows: Last day last, as ten waggons, each carrying 12 large bags of hops, could be seen in town. There would be seen at one time on Main Street waiting to be unloaded at the docks for shipment. Now, there were only two or three on a few farms in Sophiasburg, and at the present writing per pound, represent a considerable amount of money.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 1.—Surveyor-General Russel started for the east to-day.

The Free Press official says that O'Keefe's survey party passed here for the east on Wednesday, and completed their exploration of the country south of the English River.

Prof. Macoun's party passed here going east on Saturday, and Col. Richardson on Wednesday.

The weather is clear and cold. Ice is running in the river. Navigation is suspended. The steam ferry has been laid up.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 2.—The ice bridge formed on the river last night, and hundreds of people are crossing on foot to-day. The weather is clear and cold.

NO CHEAPER TO STAKE.—Turkey has prohibited the export of any of her cereals by an order which reads between the lines, that she cannot afford to sell her grain cheap before the threatening troubles are over in Europe and Asia.

RAILWAY RECEIPTS.—The receipts of the Great Western Railway for the week ending the 25th inst., were $47,784, 58 cts., showing an increase of $26,706, 12 over the corresponding week of last year.

DEATH OF A JUDGE.—A despatch from Winnipeg on the 31st says—"Judge Betournay, of the County Court, Queen's County, died last night from dropsy, making the second judicial casualty in this province by death within the last two months."

LIVE STOCK.—The Montreal Financial Gazette says.—"The cargo steamships of the Allan line have been arrived at the ports of Liverpool and Glasgow with up to this date this season, took on 2,345 cattle, 22 calves, 99 hogs, 177 horses, 74 mules and 29,312 sheep, which were all landed in good order with the exception of 4 cattle, 3 horses and 661 sheep, and of these, three cattle were reshipped as in injured condition, and died or were slaughtered shortly after leaving port."

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY.—A cable special to the Globe says.—"The semi-annual report of the Grand Trunk Railway Company has been issued. After making provision for the interest on debentures and for minor charges, a balance of £307 is carried forward with the £1,000 brought over from last year. The gross receipts are over five per cent less than for the corresponding period last year.

GRAIN AND SILVER DISPOSED.—The Winnipeg Times states that Mr. Keenan's gold and silver deposits have been found in such immense quantities that he may expect the rush to Manitoba next year to exceed anything California ever thought of. The gold would never have been discovered if Mackenzie had remained at the head of the Government, as he had decided against the development of that part of the country.

To Subscribers in Arrears.

INTELLIGENCER OFFICE,
Sept. 11th, 1878.

We have been sending accounts to subscribers in arrears, and will continue to do so until all accounts due for subscriptions are rendered.

We do not propose doing a credit business, and to that end have reduced the price of subscription to $1.50 per year, or less than 3c. per week, postage paid, where we receive the money.

To those who have received accounts we have to say that we have made arrangements to collect accounts from our advertised rates which is $1 per year when not paid in advance, and that will enable them to take advantage of the cheaper rate in future, believing that most of the accounts on our books are caused chiefly by negligence of our subscribers than from their inability to pay.

Our purpose is to issue a paper worthy of the large patronage it receives, but we must insist on prompt payment of the subscription price.

CHEAP READING.

Now is the Time to Subscribe.

A SPLENDID OFFER.

From this date, the WEEKLY INTELLIGENCER will be sent to NEW SUBSCRIBERS to the end of the year of JANUARY, 1880, for ONE DOLLAR and a HALF.

Each new subscriber thus gets the largest weekly paper published in the whole of the large cities, FOR ONE FOURTEEN MONTHS FOR ONE YEAR'S SUBSCRIPTION.

In all cases the money must invariably accompany the order.

New subscribers commencing at any time before the end of JANUARY, can have the INTELLIGENCER sent them up to January, 1880, for one dollar and a half.

Will not the friends of the Liberal Party in Northumberland and Prince Edward, kindly let the liberal offer be widely known. We are satisfied if this is done the large cities, FOR ONE FOURTEEN MONTHS | result will be a handsome increase in the number of our subscribers.

The Quebec Crisis.

The crisis in the political affairs of the Province of Quebec which had prevailed for two months past, has at last been ended by the defeat of the Joly Government on the question previously seen, Mr. Joly, on the opening of the Legislature on Tuesday, moved a series of resolution condemning the action of the Lieutenant-Governor in dismissing his Ministry, and in calling Chapleau to power. The vote was taken by a majority of 8, the numbers being 39 to 31. Mr. Joly then announced that he would not continue to govern the country, but would tender the resignation of himself and colleagues to the Governor. Mr. Flynn (a former supporter of the Government) said:

I am glad to think this House hereby most solemnly verifications all the constitutional rights, powers, and responsibilities of the Crown and of this House, on either matter. It is at the same time of opinion that the people of this Province have shown to the country from a patriotic standpoint, and without any distinction of party, that they are not in a state of political warfare and agitation, and the province is prosperous and in the enjoyment of peace. In the interests of the Province, that it be the duty of the Government to bring down at once a full statement of the affairs of the country, to unite all the supporters of the Government in order that the Government a strong and efficient administration will be capable of preparing and carrying out the measures necessary for the welfare of the country, and a general election will take place.

After making provision for the interest on debentures and for minor charges, a balance of £307 is carried forward with the £1,000 brought over from last year. The gross receipts are over five per cent less than for the corresponding period last year.

GRAIN AND SILVER DISPOSED.—The Winnipeg Times states that Mr. Keenan's gold and silver deposits have been found in such immense quantities that he may expect the rush to Manitoba next year to exceed anything California ever thought of. The gold would never have been discovered if Mackenzie had remained at the head of the Government, as he had decided against the development of that part of the country.

Our Iron Interests.

A visit to the villages of Madoc will convince one not only of the magnitude of our iron interests but also of the important factor the development of that interest is in the prosperity of the northern part of this county.

As was predicted, the building of the North Hastings Railway has given places a commercial value upon the iron ore which had laid in the woods in the township of Madoc for ages comparatively valueless, awaiting a cheap means of transit to the markets where its value was to be determined.

The largest shipper of ore in that section is Mr. C. J. Post, who is actively engaged in developing the ferruginous mines, which he leased a short distance from the village. A visit to the mines shows that the business is being conducted in a thorough manner and carried on. Mr. Posey employs about 60 men at the mines, and from where the work chiefly of mining is being carried on night and day. The work is being principally done by steam, the administration with steam drills, but where practicable, and in the open cuts, gunpowder is used, and a large force of practical miners imported into this country for the purpose.

Mr. Cox and Capt. Mitchell are also actively engaged in developing the iron and ore beautiful ore from the Wallbridge mine, where they employ about 30 men. Mr. Cox and Mr. Posey intend extending their operations as soon as the North Hastings Railway is in position to give them greater accommodation, which the railway company are endeavoring to do.

Ald. Robertson, chairman of the Canal Committee of the City Council, said he had addressed circulars to the railway companies in the United States requested, asking them to meet here to discuss the question. He was of opinion that Belleville was in quite the most central point for receiving the ore, and that the railway was to the desirability of the canal, and their attention was specially directed to the fact of having the best means of inducing the Government to commence the work.

In answer to Mr. Murphy, Ald. Robertson said that the money must be immediately forthcoming with the Government.

Ald. Robertson moved the first resolution, seconded by Mr. Kesler, M. P., as follows:

Resolved,—That a deputation do wait upon the Hon. Sir Charles Tupper, Minister of Railways and Canals, and the Hon. Mr. Pope, Minister of Agriculture, at Ottawa, on the first day next session, to urge upon him the necessity and importance of the Murray Canal; and to respectfully request him to take the necessary steps to have the Government of the day to the township of Madoc, and he was at the Grand Trunk, and Bonnell's Mills, and the old Grand Trunk, and Bonnell's Mills, and the old Grand Trunk, and Bonnell's Mills, and the old

Sad Loss of Life.—At Harper's Mills, N.S., on the 19th inst., during a severe snowstorm, a party of seven men were employed on the 19th, 20th, and 21st inst., doing some drawing in the vicinity of land and gravel storage. Several vessels were driven ashore, some destroyed, others got off again, and much damage done. Among the vessels driven ashore were the schooners Rose Mary, of Brighton, and Rockwood Star.

THE GREAT FEMALE REMEDY.

JOB MOORE PILLS.

This invaluable medicine is unfailing in the cure of all those painful and dangerous diseases to which the female constitution is subject. It strengthens the system, purifies the blood, and by regulating and counteracting the system, fortifies the constitution against the attacks of disease, and when taken in middle of old age, prevents that stoppage which is sure to take place. They are the best remedy to be used for two or three weeks previous to confinement, as they relieve the debilitated state of the system, and fortify the constitution, lessen the suffering during labor, and expedite recovery after delivery. They never neither to perform her duties with comfort to her self and child.

In all cases of Nervous and Spinal Affections Weakness of the Back and Limbs, Pain in the Side, Exertion, Palpitation of the Heart, Hysterics, and Whites, they will be found a never failing remedy, all other means have failed; and, although a powerful medicine, they contain no mercury, mineral, or anything hurtful to the constitution.

Full directions for use in each wrapper around each package. JOB MOORE, New York, sole proprietor.

$1.00 and 125-cents packages, enclosed to Worth & Co. and Lyman & Co., Toronto, will secure them for the Dominion, will insure a bottle, containing 50 pills, by return mail, post paid.

Invalids, do you wish to gather flesh, to acquire an appetite, to enjoy a regular habit of body? Is Consumption coming on? Is your blood impure? Is your liver out of order? Is your system debilitated? Is your nervous system deranged? If so, use at once and you will be cured. Dr. Gordon Worth of Northrop & Lyman of Toronto, and he is about the best druggist in the city, has prepared it, tested and strengthened. It is a well-known fact that Quinine has been acknowledged by the medical faculty for many years as the best specific and tonic known. And by a process of refining, this combination will be found superior to all other preparations. And combined as it is with the cherry wine and cleaso extractive, it is made an invaluable aid to the digestive organs, and enables people more than one or two 3 times to effect a decided benefit, as it contains nothing injurious to the most delicate constitution. Northrop & Lyman, Toronto, Ont., are the proprietors, and will send it to any address on receipt of price, $1.00 per bottle. Be satisfied that you have full value for your money. 6 all Medicine Dea ers.

The Intelligencer.

BELLEVILLE, THURSDAY, NOV. 6.

LOCAL NEWS.

Eye and Ear.—It will be seen by advertisement that Dr. Stewart, oculist and aurist, is now at the Dafoe House and will remain until Monday, the 17th November.

Grain Exports.—The Chronicle says that the exports of grain from Trenton on the 27th, 28th and 29th ult., amounted to 4,000 bushels, of which 40,000 bushels was barley and the remainder rye.

If your head troubles you, take a little SAUNDER'S JAMAICA GINGER.

Inland Revenue.—The Inland Revenue returns of the Belleville division for the month of October are as follows: Spirits $6,197 01; Tobacco $1,664 40; Malt $221,00; total $7,982 41. Corresponding month last year $6,222 76. Increase $760.72.

First Shipment.—The first shipment of grain from Hoard's Station, on the line of the G. J. Railway, was made by Thos. Walker, Esq., of Hamden, who shipped a car of barley from that station on Thursday last. The Railway is becoming a great help to the farmers along the line.

Plant Sold.—The Kingston Whig says:—The type and apparatus constituting the estate of the Provincial Freeman (formerly Planet) has been purchased by a gentleman in Trenton, who proposes to start a paper in the interests of the Conservative party.

Belleville Pottery.—The repairs to this establishment have been made; outbuildings have been erected; the roofs and interior have been put in proper shape, and on the arrival of the clay which is expected from Perth Amboy, New Jersey, work will commence.

Iron Ore.—Messrs. Cox and Mitchell, as well as Mr. Passey, are busily engaged shipping iron ore from their mines in Madoc. The ore is forwarded by rail, as vessel owners will not take freights at the rates offered. The ore goes principally to Elmira, N. Y., for smelting.

Tax Capital Trade.—An order has been issued by the Secretary of the Treasury of the United States prohibiting the importation of cost Cuttle into the United States from the Dominion of Canada. The order takes effect on the 1st of December.

Fall Wheat.—A well informed farmer of Ameliasburg informs us that the prospects in a great part of Prince Edward are returning to the cultivation of fall wheat, the area of which grain seen in that county this year is much larger than has been known for many years previous.

The Storm.—The snow storm seems to have been much lighter east than it was in this vicinity, while in the northern townships the snow fall was heavier than it was here. A gentleman who arrived on a passenger evening's train states that at Frankford there was over a foot of snow, and no vehicles were running on wheels.

Railway News.—A new siting was constructed at Cushy's mill last week on the line of the Grand Junction Railway, and the bridge over the river at that point has been subsided there. On Tuesday three cars of gravel were drawn there and their contents removed. Several cars of flour will be loaded there for shipment to the Marmora Iron Works.

Tour Roads.—Frontenac and York and one or two other counties in Ontario, still adhere to the old-fogy system of keeping their roads in repair, one of the most objectionable features of which is the statute labor system. Under this system the roads are in a disgraceful condition, and it is a wonder that the numerous accidents that occur do not happen to Frontenac is corrected, and it will certainly be strange if it does not.

Boots & Shoes.—On Thursday night Mr. Kellock's boot and shoe store, and the Commercial Hotel, met with a serious accident by fire. Mr. Kellock was operating the roads call at the house of his father-in-law, Mr. S. Hall, Thurlow, and whilst pulling off the boot on his right foot, a small tack ran into the ankle leg broke. This unfortunate accident will lay Mr. McCammon up for some time to come.

The Grand Junction.—The last issue of the Canada Gazette contains a notice that a charter has been granted to the Grand Junction Railway Company—being the balance not hitherto called for—has been made by the Board of Directors, payable at the office of Uriah E. Thompson, Esquire, Treasurer of the Company, Bridge Street, Belleville, on or before the tenth day of December next.

More Gold Discoveries.—Mr. Adam Airhart, of Madoc, exhibited here to-day a few specimens of gold recently found in that township. The specimens are small, in which gold is plainly seen in several places. It is from the Township of Lake, on a farm owned by Mr. Airhart, and from the indications so far as developed around Wellington, and vicinity intends to have the specimen of quartz assayed by Prof. Hoyle.

Sudden Death.—On Sunday night the Rev. Mr. O'Reilly a Roman Catholic clergyman curate at Madoc, and who was staying at Moon's Hotel, retired to bed at the usual hour. On Monday morning the gentleman was found dead on the floor of his bedroom, with his face on the floor and knees, with his head resting on the bed. It is said that the poor gentleman had sat down on the bed and after pulling off his boots was stricken with apoplexy which was the immediate cause of his death.

The Gatling Mine.—We understand that arrangements for the working of the Gatling gold mine are progressing very satisfactorily. The furnace and other necessary machines will be completed this evening, and the company has added boarding and pumping works to the shaft. Gen. Tuttle, who is superintending the works, has gone to Chicago for the purpose of securing the best machine or other grinding machines and amalgamating pans, and it is expected the works at the mine will be commenced at an early day.

Wetter is Earnest.—Although it can scarcely be possible that winter has set in thus early, yet the weather has an appearance which lends plausibility to such a supposition. Last night, the 4th inst., it was expected by many, the air was extremely cold and the ice of Hungerford was severe. The consequence was that this morning the bay was thinly frozen over nearly its whole surface, whilst the still water in the river was more thickly coated with ice, and the outside portions were its regular winter appearance. Despite the ice, the steamers were able to run, and navigation was not seriously impeded.

Court House.—In the Southern Assize Court to have had a coon hunt is not to have seen life, there were coon hunting is confined to the night time but here the sight of a coon at any hour is the incentive to a hunt, at least we thought Mr. J. A. Vanderwater and Mr. J. Rains of Rawdon, as they proceeded to the city on Friday last, on seeing three coons across the road, tied their horses to the fence and a coon hunt was at once instituted, when with only one or two weapons and without the assistance of dogs the three coons were all secured, but not before the hunters were well blown with their exertions.

Hunkerila.—The Picton Gazette says: Mr. Geo. Hogg, of Denver, Colorado—like a sensible man that he is, has become a Benedict, he having been married, at Cottonwood, on Wednesday last, to Miss Denill, daughter of Mr. Denill, of that place. Mr. Hogg is from Shannonville, Brighton, Belleville, Toronto, and Picton, and we know of no more enjoyable time was experienced by all. The bride was the recipient of a large number of valuable presents. The happy couple took the str. Chas. for Denver the same evening. We wish them every success and a friend upon the occasion of his marriage to Denver, and to the newly married pair, and daughters, and to wish the newly wedded a prosperous journey and happy life.

Heavier Road to Trade.—It will be remembered when the scheme for the Belleville and North Hastings Railway was before the people, that a branch road to Madoc was to be built by the same company or other in full strength. The question has been frequently received, but we have no authority in saying that should the Grand Junction Railway Company continue to operate the Belleville and North Hastings Railway, and this will be known definitely in a few days, that a branch road to Madoc, Ingleton, Hungerford and Tweed, should grade and ballasted, and the rails laid, ready for iron, spring and work it. As the grading and ballasting would be a great part of the half the expense, and would be a small matter for the company with the advantages to be derived from the construction of this branch Railway, it is not unreasonable to suppose that the people should have the necessary capabilities, would give it their aid.

Gurney's Belleville agency of the Consolidated Bank was closed on the 30th, the balance of the business and customers here having been transferred to the Head Office, Bank of Montreal. The current notes held by the Bank of Montreal, which was transferred to account to $1,000, have been handed to the Bank of Montreal, Belleville, and the Bank of Montreal, Belleville, will redeem them. The Consolidated Bank will redeem its notes held by the Bank of Montreal, Belleville, and the only officer in charge now is Mr. F. C. Clark, the agency at Kemp, New York, where marked, or stamped in pale, transparent letters, "Bad." Look out for light, and it generates, you will see the above words. Do not buy Dominion, but make many friends while in the real estate. The water-marked letters which compel them to leave, but while best wishes for their future success will go with them. Mr. Clark has been in the Bank of Montreal for some time previous to his connection with the Consolidated Bank, and latterly as acting Manager, and in his new position will be found fully up to the following of a river. Considerable blasting is also reported from the south of Picton.

A GREAT SNOW STORM.

EIGHTEEN INCHES OF "THE BEAUTIFUL."

EFFECTS OF THE UNSEASONABLE VISITATION.

November opened in early most, as was stated in Saturday's issue, after one of the finest Octobers on record; but there were few, if any guessed, who anticipated that by the morning of the 3rd day would see eighteen inches of snow on the level. Sunday morning broke dull and dreary looking, the sun being obscured by heavy grey clouds, which seemed charged with either rain or snow, and at about 9 o'clock snow began to fall. At first the flakes fell thinly, but afterwards quickly became more rapid, and by noon the face of nature was covered by a light coating of "the beautiful," which continued to fall steadily, until by 6 p.m. there was from 6 to 8 inches of snow on the ground. About this hour the feathery flight ceased for a time, but later in the evening it recommenced, and continued steadily during the night, so that by 8 a.m. on Monday the measurement showed that on the level there was nearly 18 inches of snow, while here and there it had taken place the depth was from 2 to 3 feet. The first flight of snow having been damp, had adhered to fences and trees, and the result was that these latter, many of which have not yet been denuded of all their leaves, were confined with additional snow, so heavy that, in the case of trees whose wood is brittle, such as plums and grapes, cherries, lilacs, &c., many limbs were broken off and great damage done, which will be most severely manifested this season by the time for gathering the next crop arrives.

The effect of the change to the roads and streets was entirely suspended. A few cutters were out on Sunday night, and the free jingling of the merry bells was heard for the season, but next morning the music of the bells was no longer audible, nor particularly welcome, the time being unseasonable for their appearance.

Since ploughs were abroad quite early clearing the sidewalks on the principal streets, whilst on the street railway a plough drawn by four horses was employed in clearing the track, and a perfect army of shovellers were busily engaged in removing the obstruction to travel in various parts of the city.

Although a storm of such magnitude is without parallel at this early date in the remembrance of the great majority of our people, old residents state that many years ago there was just such a storm as that of which we write, and that it occurred at an even earlier period of the season.

THE RAILWAYS.

It is a matter for congratulation that the railroads from the north—considering the difficulties that the storm threatened to work on their arrival at the G. T. R. junction on Monday—were in no delay of an hour on account of shunning on the principal line connected to the B. & N. H. Ry. but reliable the G. J. R. train from Hastings made the crossing and arrived at the Pinnacle Street station ten minutes late only. It was expected that the B. & N. H. R. train would be greatly delayed in consequence of many obstacles in the vicinity of Moira Lake, but the curve at this point was so improved under the direction of Mr. R. Luttrell, established, that no hitch occurred with the contemplated obstacles were avoided and the train arrived on time as above. This is especially creditable in view of the fact that the G. J. R. train from the east and west were considerably behind their proper time of arrival.

A PARALLEL.

Hon. Bills Flint informs us that on the 20th of March, 1844, snow fell to the depth of two feet. This statement is corroborated by Mr. Rodger Sherwood in this, that in the same year and on the same date, while in the vicinity of Napanee, snow fell to the depth of four feet. Since the year above mentioned many severe storms have occurred, but we have noticed as early period of the winter it is seldom that a storm of such severity as this has made its appearance.

The Greatest Remedy Known.

Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption is certainly the greatest remedy ever placed within the reach of suffering humanity. Thousands of once helpless sufferers, now hold in grateful terms of praise this wonderful Discovery, to which they owe their lives. Not only does it positively cure Consumption, but Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Hay Fever, Hoarseness and all affections of the Throat, Chest and Lungs yield at once to its wonderful curative powers as if by magic. We do not ask you to buy until you know what you are getting. We will cheerfully and freely give you a sample bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery, which we guarantee to give perfect satisfaction in every case or money refunded. Price 25 cents per bottle. Sold by Wallbridge & Co.

The New Dispensation.

The Enclosure of Palatable Castor Oil with glycerine, manufactured by Scott & Bowne, at their new and splendid medicinal establishment, 46 and 48 Wellington street, Toronto, is the most agreeable form of administering one of the most valuable of all remedies. Children like it as cheerfully as they would a spoonful of cream, and infallibly cry for more. To any one who knows what Castor Oil is, and what it is good for, the most efficacious cathartic and cure of intestinal inflammation, the inestimable nature of this new preparation will be appreciated. Scott & Bowne's Palatable Castor Oil should be in every household. 21-ly

The Rifle.

The fourth match for the 40th Battalion challenge cup was shot on Friday afternoon with the following result:

Private W. Kerr, No 1 Co.	82
Corporal Hilton, "	77
Private John Kerr, "	69
Lieut. J. W. Johnson, "	67
Total	295

The above scores ranged down to 57. There were but eight competitors and the wind was strong and cold and very unfavorable for shooting.

Sweet and Pleasant as New Milk.

It is suicide to disregard the chill and then the cough with which in the next few months so many thousands will be attacked. It is almost as bad when the attack comes, to drown oneself in the ocean of nastiness with which the country is flooded. The best preventive is in the world, as well as the best remedy, is a combination of Cod Liver Oil and Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda, as found in Scott's Emulsion, and then it is as agreeable to the taste as new milk, and is prescribed universally by physicians.

The Detectives will give you in exchange for Beaver Oil, a beautiful package of Beaver for the hair. It is the most delightful hair dressing we know of.

Fellows' Hypophosphites make an old person look years younger. "This witness is true." Would that I could more widely make it known for its many virtues. Long may its benefits be spread, is the happy fruits of his invention.

Alexander Baker, D.D., Amherst, N.S.

Minister Doctors are the most unwelcome visitors—even the Doctor himself cures the sick—but not compelled him to leave his comfortable bed. Suppose you try our method, and keep a bottle of Perry Davis' Pain Killer. Relatives and friends of Doctor Squills stay in his bed and enjoy good health.

Circumstances Alter Cases.—The Globe says:—"The campaign in Levis, Province of Quebec, is now in full swing, where Mr. Paquet, the new Provincial Secretary, is seeking re-election. He has to meet Mr. Tarte, of the Canadien, a leading Conservative, spoke in opposition." Before the defeat of the Jelly administration, the Globe would not accept Tarte's words strong enough to denounce Mr. Paquet. The latter was then considered unpointed in not getting a seat in the Cabinet. Now that Mr. Paquet has got one he is simply "enough to weaken a horse."

The Molson Bank Defalcation.—The Montreal Gazette says:—The defalcation of Bowen's Palatable Castor Oil should be in every household. It is the Scientific and Safe Remedy for Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Cholera Infantum, Colic, Constipation, Sour Stomach, Nausea, Headache, and Feverishness caused by Teething, or other causes. Perfectly harmless. Sold by druggists. Price 25 cents.

Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil is the best remedy for Croup, Colds, Coughs, Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Asthma, Influenza, Whooping Cough, Hoarseness, Sore Chest, Lame Back, Pains and Aches. Price 25 cents.

Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator is pleasant to take, sure in its effects, and safe in all cases. Try it.

Mr. Matcalfe, occupied a portion of the time of the Court of Queen's Bench this morning in his client's case, which was an action brought by the plaintiff to recover $4,000 damages for the seduction of his daughter. The defendant was a well-to-do farmer residing in the township of Ernestown, and the plaintiff's daughter was a young girl of about 17 years of age. The defendant was a married man, and the plaintiff's daughter was employed in his household. The defendant's wife was confined to her bed with illness, and the plaintiff's daughter was left in charge of the household. The defendant took advantage of the opportunity to seduce the girl, and the result was that she became pregnant. The defendant's wife died, and he married the girl. The plaintiff claimed that the defendant had promised to marry his daughter before the seduction took place, and that he had broken his promise. The defendant denied that he had made any such promise. The jury found a verdict for the plaintiff for $400 damages.

Destructive Fire in Thurlow.

A YOUNG GIRL BURNED BEYOND RECOVERY.

A destructive fire destroyed the dwelling of Mr. F. C. Burgess, in the 6th concession of Thurlow, on the afternoon of last Sabbath, the 4th inst., and it is feared one of the inmates, a little girl of nine years of age, is burned beyond recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Burgess having gone from home to attend the funeral of a relative, left the house in the care of the hired girl and their three children, two boys and a girl, aged respectively fourteen years of age. At two o'clock this morning one of the boys discovered the house was on fire, and called the rest of the inmates of the house, who with the exception of Miss Burgess, were able to escape in their night clothes.

Mr. E. Metcalfe, occupied a portion of the time of the Court of Queen's Bench this morning in his right clothes and with bare feet, and Miss Burgess, the little girl, nine years of age, who seemed dazed with fright, in the excitement the girl was missed, when a father and mother saw the burning building and found that the girl had returned to the house, and had not covered herself up with the clothing. By the time she was discovered the fire was by the back door? but it was found that the girl had escaped by the front door and fatal results. Dr. Faulkner, of Tweboro, was called, but could give no hope of her recovery, as the body was terribly burned with the cold, and Mr. Metcalfe, who was present, could feel no hope from these sufferers.

Mr. Metcalfe lost all his furniture and household effects, upon which there was no insurance.

Mr. Burgess' loss will be about $2,000, partly insured in the London Mutual.

Other Accidents.

We hear that the little girl mentioned above has since died.

Brighton Racquetballs and Fixe.—The most powerful, and the safest of all remedies. Under their penetrating, detergent influences the balance of the system is restored, the blood speedily changed in their character, and the whole system renovated and nutritious are soon set and healed.

Dr. Le Gentleman Florida Water.—The true Florida Water always comes with a full pumpkin pendant and a green leaf on the stem, and the impress of this pumpkin are the words "J. Crew, Jr. & Co., Key West," plainly marked, or stamped in pale, transparent letters, "Bad." Look out for light, and it generates, you will see the above words. Do not buy Dominion, but make many friends while in the real article. The water-marked letters which compel them to leave, but while best wishes for their future success will go with them. Mr. Clark has been in the Bank of Montreal for some time previous to his connection with the Consolidated Bank, and latterly as acting Manager, and in his new position will be found fully up to the following of a river. Considerable blasting is also reported from the south of Picton.

LAKE vs. WARRINGTON.—The facts in this case though not of a very exciting kind are a fairness, and leave nae Maywood, a merchant. The case grew out of a contract by the plaintiff to supply the defendant Lake said with some stock under the terms of which the defendant was to pay the plaintiff for the same. In 1877 the plff bought a number of cattle from Mr. Tucker took them to Lake's farm, and kept them there until the spring of 1878, when he sold them to the defendant Lake for $4000. Mr. Tucker took a note for $4000 but was not carried out as the sale was drawn up by and given to Mr. Warrington, being by word between Mr. Tucker and Lake that the note was to be given up when the money was forthcoming. Mr. Tucker would not allow the money to be applied on the purchase. Tucker said after the sale was made and closed he had but little money. The defendant counsel said in Mr. Tucker's presence that this paper was made at this time for convenience, and that it could be used to do it and persons who can do such work are not always at hand. The note was given for the $1000 the Tucker was supposed to have coming, and to secure payment allowed Tucker to enter upon the land and to cut and take away the timber on the land and would give it up, and a writing was given to that effect. Lake was also to be allowed to remain until he got another place on the land, and Tucker was to let Lake get the crop next year. Warrington swore that Lake and Tucker came to his office and that Tucker said he had given Lake possession of said to Warrington to draw up the note and the sale. In 1877 the plff bought cattle from Tucker and sold them to Lake and when he went to get the money Lake said he had not got it. WHY?

Why is the wrong so strong,
And the right so weak in deed?
Why goes black bread to the patient man,
While the rich have white?

Why dies the noble mother
While the fiend-like father lives?
Why the fearful growth of an upstart ills
While the old decrease?

Why died that widow's son?
He was all she had to bless.
The childless mother lives on the selfish heart
And pain but a cold caress.

Why reads the riddle right?
Why is the wrong so wrong?
Those clouds sweep over our mortal life?
Why? We have asked, but—

Why come the throbbing pain
To that heart so firm and true?
Why the sudden shock of wealth and of blessings
Is best?

Never linger angels vane?

Why went that young life out
Just when it was the fairest?
The aspiring tongue and the fashion mind
Have less to wound and goad.

Quiet Lives.

Christ's lowly, quiet workers unconsciously bless the world. They come out every morning from the presence of God, and go forth to business or to their household work. And all day long, as they pass to and fro, they scatter the words from their lips, and scatter little seeds of kindness about them; and they gather flowers from the garden of God spring up in the day-time and at night, and scatter the fragrant petals of feel on which their feet tread. Since Christ lived and died, there is not a life of his people in this world so compared in their influence to the Master, but they are in the habit of imitating but specially noteworthy is the quiet manner in which they do their work in its ministry. It falls silently and imperceptibly. It makes no noise. It does not call attention to itself. It chooses the darkness of the night when the world is asleep, for the time when man can witness its beautiful work. It covers itself with the mantle of humility, and creeps into the bosom of the flowers, and leaves a sweet perfume behind it. It is like the dew that comes down among the roots of the grasses and of the flowers, and among the herbs of the field, and watches them all night long, and refreshes them in the morning, so that they are ready to bear the heat of the day. Such people in this world are compared in their influence to the light of the moon, and to the pulses of tenderness and sympathy which are in the pale moonlight

Terrible Disaster.

Fall of Buildings in Kansas City

SEVERAL PERSONS BURIED IN THE RUINS.

MANY OTHERS WOUNDED

(Associated Press Dispatch)

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 8.—A terrible disaster occurred at the corner of Delaware and Main Streets yesterday. The extensive cracker and candy manufactory of Gal. Bros. & Co., occupying four brick three story buildings, besides basement, was entirely destroyed. One hundred and seven persons, mostly girls, were employed in the factory, part of whom were at work in the basement. The cause of the accident is not determined, but is supposed to be a repetition of the explosions Sunday Street explosion in New York last week, namely, a starch explosion. As soon as the walls fell the building took fire. The firemen were on hand in a few minutes, and to their efficient services the rescuing of many persons is due, and their lives saved. As soon as the news spread through the city, thousands of people were employed clerks to the scene with anxiety to learn the fate of friends and relatives. The firemen subdued the flames they commenced digging for the dead. By midnight they had got out three, Emma Kemper, Annie Barker and Addie Hall, all dead. The missing and supposed to be in the ruins are, Lena Hummel, Mary McDonnell, Annie Lynch, Mary and John Kemper. The buildings and contents were valued at $70,000. No insurance.

Another account says that in the second story about thirty girls were and all but seven slain by timbers blocking the doorway. They saw the windows and tried to jump, but could stop them, several had jumped, receiving terrible wounds. At last the door in the stairway was battered down and the girls were rescued. It was then found that the whole was a mass of kissing flames, and with the small hand the cake and candy were being imprisoned girls and boys. The flames were so fierce that nothing could be done to save the half an hour. Only one person, a girl, was rescued alive. It is supposed that the amount of fresh candy on the walls be greater. The building was constructed perfectly safe.

A Narrow Escape

ST JOHNS, NFLD., Nov. 10.—When the steamship Conway struck the iceberg on Friday night, many gentlemen were in the smoking room drinking pools on the run, when the vessel would run the next day. Suddenly the crash came and knocked all in a heap. The engines of the room upon the floor. In the saloon in the cabin a like scene was enacted. On the announcement to the glad "Ice ore ours with blackened agony," when the ship swung by inches and gentlemen. In the midst of the rough ship about three feet of water in the saloon colonely from their meals. Mr. A. Shortis, of Belleville, Ontario, was one of the cabin saloon, sustaining severe internal injuries. He says that the scene was terrible; groups of passengers gathered, expecting every moment to be engulfed. Crowding to where the vessel's prow was a huge shadowy mass of an enormous iceberg. The force of the brave three tall pinnacles rose 60 or 70 feet. Standing out of these ice masses they were the fate of the ship and passengers would be sealed. Capt. Jones remained on the bridge, and his first words were: "My God, man, there were many people on board particularly and, at once gave orders to back the engines. At the same time the helm was also hinted to the starboard and dipped visibly at his words was this noble fearless man's great phantom ship.

Passing the ship was sinking, sound several gentlemen to request Mr. Pierrepont Edwards, Queen-counsel, to write to the Captain to have the boats prepared, this he promised to do, but was prevented by the officer considerable delay, during which time the ship officer descended to the saloon and informed him, when he returned it was announced the ship would be facing the iceberg. Observation showed the Arizona to be water-logged, and consequently assembled in the saloon when the Rev. J. M. Hone requested that prayers be offered. Hardly had the words been uttered, when the passengers gentlemen knelt around in appropriate prayer. Then "praise God from whom all blessings flow." It was sung with impressive earnestness and heartfelt thanks mingled with chants, as the vessel in strong man's eyes.

Great difficulty was experienced in launching a single boat, which was lowered though the water, with women. It was the intention of Mr. Vetion that had the Arizona sunk within an hour after she must not a soul would have been escaped. The bow of the steamer was all smashed in, and the watertight bulkhead proved the salvation of the ship.

Slave-Driving.

The thin veneer of liberality with which the Globe overlays a heavy substratum of tyranny is occasionally torn away in moments, as it stones so broken through that the public at large who are outside the charmed circle of Government supporters get a fair peep at the sordid and see for themselves. In his party, Mr. Brown, the dictator who has made and unmade, reigns supreme, and woe be to him who dares to act otherwise than as the managing director of the leading organ dictates. It is the proper of no how the knee is anathematized, and is the either driven to seek the sympathy of his co-religionists or compelled to bow in silent oblivion, so far as the world of politics is concerned. This tyranny is no new thing; but it has been more pronounced of late than many years; it has been protested against by many who considered of Senator Cox Pasha and counsellor and under secretary of the Grand Turk. Mr. Brown is the representative from the Governorship of Aleppo at the joint request of the English and French Ambassadors because of his suppression of Armenian Seditions.

The Iron Mining Region of North Hastings.

In other columns will be found two communications on the important subject of iron mining in North Hastings, addressed to this Mr. J. B. Clark, addressed to this Journal, and the other from Mr. Wm. Ore, late of the Globe. Whilst we have lately published in the Globe, which we do not agree with all that is said by the writers in question, their suggestions are given as worthy of the most careful consideration. The hint which Mr. Ore gives to the Ontario Government is an excellent one, and we trust that it will be acted upon at once, although they have liberally aided the line so far as it has gone, a specially large grant should be given to the new roads opening up the free grant territories, the more particularly as by so doing a vast trade in iron will be created.

We also look to the Dominion Government for aid in this matter, and will the present Government of the United States portion shortened by the construction of the Murray Canal, the trade in iron ore from Michigan must be so heavy as to seriously embarrass the trade in Pennsylvania iron, and we hope that, should the present state of duty on foreign iron be altered by the extension of the railway and the construction of the canal, the trade in Swedish iron ore would within a very short time be largely diverted from the United States to that of this section of the country.

In the advisory of opening up an extensive trade in iron ore, we must not be understood as abandoning our belief that the future will exhibit still greater enterprise of manufacturing iron cannot be abandoned. The charcoal iron furnaces at Belleville and charcoal furnaces in the vicinity are doing well. The iron ore they, we hope that, should the present rate

A Wonderful Discovery.

For the speedy cure of Consumption and all Throat and Lung Diseases, such as Coughs, Colds, Asthma and short dry hacking cough, there is nothing like Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry. It is of agreeable, lingering flavour. Thousands have tested its virtues in every part of the United States, and it has established for itself a reputation unequalled by any remedy now before the public. Its power to cure is unquestionable, and the fact is proved by the many letters received from those who have been restored to health by its use. BE CONTENT.

To sing we're not led to wield the club,
Or climb to fame unequal ways;
To live content with small means seek,
To elect wish wealth, nor power, nor state,
Nor envy seeing around the throne.

Yet where our duty's task is wrought
Through humble means, unknown to all,
The right and faithful blend in one,
All's best that is willed is done.

And men the grateful sun will whose
Comes, day by day, to gild the scene,
Or hooded by the night, the quiet
Of starry hours, and worship silence.

And were this life the utmost span,
The only end and aim of man,
Better the world before me found,
Than wishing hence and wishful case.

But life, through falling like our grain,
Springs into joy and upward tends,
And early called, how blest are they
Who wait in heaven their harvest day!

To Rat a Colt.

The true way to rat a colt is not to let him at all; but, let him have his own way. When my colts are one year old, I begin to teach them to hold a bit in their mouths. The bit is of pine, some half inch in diameter, and about eight inches in length. This piece of wood is held in the mouth by a cord tied to either end and passed over the back of the colt. The colt loves to have this in his mouth, because it exercises the jaws and aids the teething process. He will bite it, and work it over in his mouth to any length it pleases. It will welcome it, and will actually reach out and open his mouth for it, as a hungry horse will for a bit. After a few days you can put on its strings, to accustom him to the bridle, and teach the colt the proper use of it. When this is done he is ready for the next regular steel bit. Put your bridle on with a leather head, and plaited; throw away all checkbits, if your horse is to be worth anything. Into the pasty eat into your waggon and drive off. This is all the training a colt needs. Treated in this way, he will have a lively, willing disposition, and you will take the best tractor when working up to him. He will gladly yield readily to the driver's will. A horse thus treated is the same while we are writers a forty year old as the time held in one hand, or he lifted over to you field readily to the voice of

Home and Friends.

Come, all adrift with me, my boy, I'll not detain you long;
To listen to an old man's song, I know you're not unwilling.
For I've a story that you now must and on the many scenes
That I have met along your path to-day and yesterday.

I mean was young like you, my son—my cup
And bright this world to me;
And I, too, had my castles built in the air,
And longed to wander far and loaded
down with pleasure,
And dreamed of sorrow crossed the smallest of my days.

But there was one among them all, the thing
Who walked me morning with a kiss and sing
Me to sleep at night,
And often would I wake in the night and hear
Her sleeping beside me with the baby that had scarcely breathed.

When South came in and we were left with no
one to protect us,
She flatly toiled for both, and Oh, how love
Can make her heroic!
To make her home so pleasant that the vices of the world
Would never allure her darling son and drag his soul to hell.

Alas! how could I disregard that mother's love
How could I honor her gentle words so early
In my young life?
I think her heart—but when I stood beside her grave
I choked with grief, and kneeling, felt her hand upon my head.

"Turn back, my son," she faintly said, "regain the narrow way;
You have not wandered wide by side for many a happy day;
And the world is cold, too, darling—Oh, retrace
before you go!
The better way"—she spoke no more—my lost
mother now
My boy, my close to mother, as you value
before you go!
Of her who would have died for you, will only give you pain.

Yes, tend to her, that mother tends, and
Her gentle steps to rest
Upon the bosom of the silent heart low beating in the breast;
And when you've done all you can do with her
and ever fame to thine,
Be sure your thought to say, "My mother's spirit has gone before."

Mother's Monthly Prayer Meeting.

Christian mothers of this city of churches, and of other cities where there is a little or a big one room, where earnest mothers go to meet and pray for their children, I want to say for one reason that mothers more than 1,800 years ago met in a prayer meeting, and God heard, and in his blessing upon them.

And what a mighty power lies in the prayers of those mothers who thus take God at his word, and ask and seek, the family register of praying thought, and who can compute the influence of those footsteps that are turned out of secret prayers, which, at the same hour, throughout the length and breadth of the land, arise from mothers' hearts and mothers' tongues—"the effectual fervent prayer continued in the "Misery sent," say, to the throne of God himself. Young mother, thyself a child of prayer, and who art now rearing a child, look up on those little darlings with which heaven has blessed you, and ask the God to whom you pray that he may send a mighty power

EUROPEAN TELEGRAMS.

SPAIN, Nov. 14.—A body of Swiss members of the Civil Guard, who attacked a foraging party of the Civil Engineers, were routed by the latter, with the assistance of the Pioneers and the Cabul Horse. The enemy re-formed a mile and a half in rear, but were pursued six miles. The Swiss loss was two killed and five wounded; ours none.

It is rumored that a combined attack by the Turcos from the Algerian frontier and the Moors on some near Spanish. An expedition is being organized against them. It is considered likely that large quantities of provisions will be found by the enemy in the Spanish Sahara, and that the Arabs are therefore preparing for a long campaign.

BERLIN, Nov. 12.—Diphtheria in Russia is on the increase. The Novoe Vremya says in gaining ground in the provinces of Kharkoff, across regions the people are ignorant of its nature. In the small district of Mozdok, in the Caucasus, 1,000 persons died in Mozgrad, where 2,000 persons succumbed in 1866, since 1,000 in Olonetz. In Odessa since May and 1,000 in Elizabethgrad. In Kharkoff since May 1,000 persons died, and 1,000 in the village of Sarapoul, and in Viatka; in Kishenoff and three populous villages. Palace the epidemic has been severe for 2 years; in the village of Tarnopol 1,000 persons have succumbed; Mogilef has witnessed an average daily death roll of 10; in Minsk the deaths have been very numerous of late. The mortality is enormous, the disease, once confined to the towns, now commences in the villages. Infection is rampant in the Empire, and cannot be stamped out by local authorities without a more energetic measure.

CAIRO, Nov. 14th.—Yesterday the receipt of fresh instructions, the British embassador refrained from visiting the Khedive at present. The attitude of the British Government in this matter is a grave misunderstanding between Turkey and Russia, originating in the Russian Embassy at Constantinople. Lobanoff to the Sultan before he went to London to Berlin, and Count Schouvaloff went to Constantinople reported that Lobanoff will interview the Sultan again before he leaves. There are no fears of invasion.

CAIRO, Nov. 14.—It is believed the Ameer and his adherents intended to make a stand at Candahar, especially if he had him in support. His position in Cabul untenable, but the Ameer's sons went there instead, and they then acted on the principle that "Dead men tell no tales."

CABUL, Nov. 17.—63 Afghans were hanged yesterday in connection with the murders.

VIENNA, Nov. 17.—A despatch from Cabul says the total number hanged for complicity in the massacre of the British Embassy is forty-nine.

A Calcutta despatch says an inquiry into the Ameer's connection with the massacre of Major Cavagnari is now going on.

PESTH, Nov. 18.—The fairness in Montenegro is very great. Upwards of 400 new houses are almost starving. The present supplies of food will only last half the winter. There is severe fighting on the Bosnian zone between Montenegrins.

VIENNARIOS, Oct. 22.—On the arrival at Lima of the news of the capture of the Peruvian war a virulent popular military demonstration against the Peruvian Minister in Chili occurred. made. The Peruvian Cabinet resigned next day.

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 16.—The Argentine Government has leased two iron-clads which it purchased in Europe.

CAPE TOWN, Oct 31.—It is reported that trouble is apprehended in the Gkaiin country. One of the Chiefs is his brother and has given an insurrection in Kokstein.

CAPE TOWN, Nov. 1.—Forty-nine Afghans in all were hanged for complicity in the massacre of the British Embassy.

A cable special says:—"A Cabinet Council to-day was called by telegraph at very short notice. It lasted over an hour. All the Ministers were present except Viscount Sandon and the Duke of Richmond.

A despatch to a military gentleman in Halifax, dated yesterday morning, contains most alarming news from Europe. Among other things it states that the Fenian Brotherhood will now be being armed with the consent of Russia, and that England has intimated to Mr. Disraeli, his intention to dot at St. Petersburg, to hold no further official communication with the Russian Government.

AMERICAN DESPATCHES.

NORTH ATTLEBORO, Nov. 17.—The shore end of the new Direct Cable from Nova Scotia to Ireland signals exchanged with the steamer Faraday. To-day the land spline will be laid, and the new cable be worked throughout its entire course by Monday. Then all the cities in and Europe will be connected by another line, the most successful of all. Thousands of people visited the beach yesterday.

SUPERIA, Nov. 17.—An advance of Bradstreet, from District with wheat acquired and forwarded on Friday, 80 miles east of Fond du Lac. The crop consisting of 7 men and 2 teams. The men are all experienced farmers. They are from Fon Davis and David McCallister, of Fort Colborne. The horses were purchased from Captain Ross, of Detroit, and James Smith, of Buffalo, men.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 18.—There is considerable excitement among the friends of Fred. Wise by the announcement that a bottle of poison was Fathead, containing a note signed "Wise," added Fathead, stating, stating: "Husband is bad condition, going 60 miles an hour; I am almost dead. Husband poisoned me. Shall be days since Bernz' death; good-bye." The handwriting is pronounced by some as that of Wise, but the story is not generally credited.

Agitation in Ireland.

LONDON, Nov. 14.

A Dublin despatch states that the Colonel commanding the 83rd seventh regiment, stationed in Dublin, has been unexpectedly notified that the barracks were to be attacked by a large force of anti-rent tenants, and that an attempt would be made to explode the magazine. Many arrests have been made among the garrison by this startling intelligence and additional precautionary measures were taken to guard against surprise, and large reinforcements were telegraphed for. The Dublin Fusiliers there really to say, is supposed to proceed from some organized bands of rebels who have been drilling and have been engaged in burning the barns of such farmers as refuse to take part in the land demonstrations against the land agents. The Fusiliers are the regiment to which Parnell's cousin, Captain Ross, of Detroit, and James Smith, of Buffalo, men.

BELLEVILLE, THURSDAY, NOV. 20.

The Weekly Intelligencer for 1880.

GREAT ATTRACTIONS.

OUR PREMIUM MAP.

In the WEEKLY INTELLIGENCER of the 4th December, will be commenced a capital Serial Story by a clever writer, which will extend over probably three months.

In addition to Serial and short Stories, the columns of the INTELLIGENCER will as formerly contain departments specially devoted to Family and Sunday reading, Farm and Garden, Scientific, Wit and Humor, Local and General News, Notices on the Markets, &c., &c., all of this a careful Synopsis of News, reports of Courts and proceedings of Corporations—in fact, such a Miscellany as will make it a welcome companion to every female in the country.

With a view of largely extending the subscription list of the INTELLIGENCER, its proprietors have determined to present every new subscriber whose term commences on or before the first of Jan. 1880, with a new Map of the County of Hastings, compiled from the Official Surveys, under the consent of Rosna, and that England has intimated to Mr. Disraeli, his intention to dot at St. Petersburg, to hold no further official communication with the Russian Government.

AMERICAN DESPATCHES.

NORTH ATTLEBORO, Nov. 17.—The shore end of the new Direct Cable from Nova Scotia to Ireland signals exchanged with the steamer Faraday. To-day the land spline will be laid, and the new cable be worked throughout its entire course by Monday. Then all the cities in and Europe will be connected by another line, the most successful of all. Thousands of people visited the beach yesterday.

SUPERIA, Nov. 17.—An advance of Bradstreet, from District with wheat acquired and forwarded on Friday, 80 miles east of Fond du Lac. The crop consisting of 7 men and 2 teams. The men are all experienced farmers. They are from Fon Davis and David McCallister, of Fort Colborne. The horses were purchased from Captain Ross, of Detroit, and James Smith, of Buffalo, men.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 18.—There is considerable excitement among the friends of Fred. Wise by the announcement that a bottle of poison was Fathead, containing a note signed "Wise," added Fathead, stating: "Husband is bad condition, going 60 miles an hour; I am almost dead. Husband poisoned me. Shall be days since Bernz' death; good-bye." The handwriting is pronounced by some as that of Wise, but the story is not generally credited.

Agitation in Ireland.

LONDON, Nov. 14.

A Dublin despatch states that the Colonel commanding the 83rd seventh regiment, stationed in Dublin, has been unexpectedly notified that the barracks were to be attacked by a large force of anti-rent tenants, and that an attempt would be made to explode the magazine. Many arrests have been made among the garrison by this startling intelligence and additional precautionary measures were taken to guard against surprise, and large reinforcements were telegraphed for. The Dublin Fusiliers there really to say, is supposed to proceed from some organized bands of rebels who have been drilling and have been engaged in burning the barns of such farmers as refuse to take part in the land demonstrations against the land agents. The Fusiliers are the regiment to which Parnell's cousin,

LET THERE BE HARMONY IN THINGS ESSENTIAL—LIBERALITY IN THINGS NOT ESSENTIAL—CHARITY IN ALL.

BELLEVILLE, PROVINCE OF ONTARIO, COUNTY OF HASTINGS, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 27, 1879. VOL. 46. NO. 42.

SOONER OR LATER

Sooner or later the storm shall beat
Over my slumber from head to feet;
Sooner or later the cold shall steal
In the long grasses over my grave.

I shall not heed those angry files,
Nothing that sunders shall cause me pain;
Nothing the hardest of rains can do
Will wet me in that day's rain.

Sooner or later the sun shall shine,
Sooner or later the world go round—I might
Sooner or later sit summer's air,
Sooner or later hear summer's song.
Master's distant orders in all these
I shall not find in that deep laid rest.
The storied light fall over my brows,
The storied dark fall over my eyes,
The wind-blown breath of the tossing flowers.

Sooner or later the stubbles mown,
Sooner or later the fields of ripe corn,
Sooner or later shall come to my ears
Reaping hook sharp, and the sickle horn.

Chill though that frozen pall shall seem,
Its touch by others shall not be felt;
That rocks not of the sacred dead
Shall ever be moved by me.

Sooner or later the low shall come
And fill the room with the golden hum;
Sooner or later the reaper's hand
Will blanched above my grave shall stay.

Sing and chirp and whistle with glee,
Ye birds that build in the trees above me;
None of those beautiful blithes shall grieve
Or flutter or fall for me when I am below.

Sooner or later, for not in the night,
Not in the dark shall I hear your call,
Not under the darkling dews
Shall the sad sheaves be bound about ones.
Child, be still.

NOW.

Rise ! for the day is passing,
While you idly stand here;
Duty leads you from the valley,
Upward to the higher.

Rise ! the sun is flying,
While you here recline;
Actions lost are never found
Time once passed by, gone.

Rise ! for the harvest waiteth
Your sickle now to wield;
Fields are ripe unto the reaping,
Yonder wake to find it not!

To Earn a Pall.

"You have lost your daughter ?' I heard one woman say to another who were mourners at a funeral.

"Yes, I've lost her," answered the poor woman, "but I never had a better girl, and our only one, and we wanted her to stay at home with us. She would have found and shelter and nice plain clothes; but, you know, girls must have their fancy for silk dress and jewelry, and things we couldn't afford, and she went off to work in a cotton factory, and she was always in a hurry to get rich, and she got consumption, and died, and I'm sure she would never have been so, if she had stayed at home."

"Then it was your own daughter's fault," said the first woman, in a hard voice.

"No, I've just told you it was not," answered the poor mother, with a sob in her throat and tears in her eyes.

"Then you shall pay the price of your own folly," said the first woman, in a voice that was as hard as iron.

"Oh, my God, forgive her!" cried the mother, as she fell down in a swoon.

Of course the question arises : "But what about those who were wrong doing to be spoken of for truth and justice?" Clear as the sunlight is the answer, "Do not fear to speak "the truth." The truth, not such things as you may have heard, or read, or said, or thought about it. "But what we suppose to be the truth." 2. "Then be sure you yourself may stand the test." 3. "In the name of the Lord." 4. "Speak not evil words one against another." 5. "To the glory of God." Follow these up, and those three words, and you are guilty of sin. Oh may He give us grace to keep our tongues from evil, and our lips from guile, and watch this day before one month, and keep the door of our lips that we offend not in word, unpolished, unpolite, or with speeches unbecoming as we do not profess.

Take, my lips, and let them be Filled with nourishment from Thee.

Stop !

Stop, young man ! You are in a hurry, and you don't like to do anything well. If you are in a hurry, especially in a very important matter, you are sure to be at an utter loss you shall have had time to collect your thoughts, and to consider how you will work to accomplish what you have in hand. A vast number of failures are to be met with by people being in haste. They go at an undertaking with such a confused manner, how to best accomplish the purpose in hand. A vast number of accidents happen because we must hurry—they must hurry at a fire, for instance. Many a time and oft have I seen the woman who threw a looking-glass from the third story window, because the fire in the room was on fire, might very advantageously have gone down stairs with it instead. Again, it is said that when driving at the highest speed, a horse will never run away. It will be nothing if greater coolness required. A nervous, excited driver imparts his fears and excitement to the animal he is using, and then often the runs—as in other cases the driver is not to blame. Stop, and think, act—if you want to come out right.

Perfect Peace.

In the hour of death, the poem of God which passeth understanding was specially verified in the case of a young girl who for years since departed to her heavenly home. Her parents observed that in the midst of her youth she was apparently indifferent to her future welfare, and the story of the cross possessed no attraction for her. But the Lord visited her with a long and painful illness, and in the school of affliction she sat at the feet of Jesus and learned of Him. Her mind was made wise unto salvation. Sickness seized her, and the disease was rapid and consumptive, which flashed fast their sad wasted her frail frame; and the hectic flush upon her cheek told that death was renewed. At last the end came, and the parents, clustering around her bed, heard her parting words. Alas ! to speak was impossible, but she had strength and power to smile, the dying girl summoned all her strength, and with a look of peace on her face, she sank on her pale thin fingers, in the letters of the death alphabet, the simple but expressive words, "I am happy." Her earthly her spirit winged the flight; but the parents, as they looked upon those words of heaven on the dark waters of sin and unbelief, felt that the Christian religion was a reality, and sorrowed not as those who have no hope.

Avoid Unnecessary Anxiety.

Hardly a week passes within which there is not the announcement of a sudden death among prominent men. Most of these seem to be anxious troubles, to depression and anxiety, or to overwork. Many important lives are unnecessarily cut off, and many more narrowed, useless and untimely death, because it might be avoided by care before. It is the duty of every man to avoid such perils and torments so many men could easily avoid. Many men are worried to death by the most. It rises from habitually making about the most unimportant matters of every day life. One day of thought and five of work is much better than one day of work and one day of reflection beforehand would often save many days and months of time afterward. Think before you enter upon a new plan, of what you are undertaking, and the way to success ascends. No chasm of profit comes between. The loss of time is made up by many a prominent man carries and tries to conquer difficulties as they arise, and for a long, if you would enjoy anything of the comforts of life, learn to be calm, self-possessed and avoid as far as possible all occasions of unnecessary anxiety.

Half-Heartedness.

I am tired and sick of half heartedness. You don't like a half hearted meal, or a half care for any one to love you with a half-hearted love, or a half-hearted kiss. You are going to seek for Him and find Him, we must do it with all our heart. I believe the reason why so many people find Christ is because they do not search for Him with all their hearts ; they are not lovingly in earnest about their soul's salvation. God is in earnest, everything God has done proves that He is in earnest about the salvation of men's souls. He has proved it by giving His only Son to die for us. The Son of God was in earnest when He died. What is Calvary but a proof of that ? And the Lord wants us to be in earnest when it comes to this great question of life and death. I cannot now see men seeking Him with all their hearts but they find Him.

You have not much respect upon the world; they lose it that do buy it with much care.

Never give counsel when it is not asked you; especially to those who are incapable of appreciating it.

The habit of being always employed is a great safeguard through life, as well as moral help to the exercise of every virtue.

However dull a woman may be she will understand all there is in her; however intelligent a man may be he will never know her mind if it.

EMMELINE.

LET THERE BE HARMONY IN THINGS ESSENTIAL—LIBERALITY IN THINGS NOT ESSENTIAL—CHARITY IN ALL.

CHAPTER I.

IN CLYDE STREET.

One winter night, in the year 18—, when snow had thick and fast and covered everything streets with its snowy mantle, a cab drew up before a house in one of the new and regular pace; the blinds were drawn down, and it was impossible for any one to see whether it was occupied or not. At the door of the cab stood a man who, from his stood looking very expectant into towards the vehicle now close at hand. He was used to the driver, who immediately drew rein. It being then a very uncommon thing to see a cab in that part of Clyde Street, heads popped out at every window, and many doors were opened, but they saw only roused their curiosity to a greater pitch.

A tall gentleman stepped out, muffled in such a manner that only the upper part of his face could be seen. He seemed to be old to alight, clasked and veiled so that it was impossible to tell his age with any accuracy. She walked slowly as if weak or suffering.

Slowly they descended the stairs leading to the first basement floor, where a very respectably young woman with a baby in her arms. The young man who had been standing at the door now spoke to the woman with the child, and told her he would show them into the room, a little comfortable.

Mrs. Renfrew—for that was the woman's name—ushered them into a small room, plainly furnished. Opposite the door of entrance was a bright fire, and a table, and a damask drapery tastefully arranged, a sofa was drawn near the fire, and every-thing was in order. The young man looked at it as he entered, and then at the sofa, and seemed to be satisfied with the arrangements. The old man who had entered with him, and who was evidently the master of the house, looked round him with a satisfied air, and then turned to Mrs. Renfrew. To the left of the entrance was a folding-door, which was covered in an old-fashioned carved-grate. On the mantle shelf stood a small ship, cut out of wood, and a few other ornaments, all of which were very simple and inexpensive.

"Will you please to step this way, sir?" said Mrs. Renfrew, addressing the old man, and turning to the folding-door.

"Yes, Renfrew," he answered, in a deep voice, and then turned to the young man, and said, "Ay, my lady, this is no place for you, you will go with her."

"Oh, Donald, must I leave my poor babe to suffer for our weakness. So pure she is now, and if left with strangers, how can she bear the change ? I feel as if I would rather see her buried, than leave her with them."

"No, no, you must not think of this ; we are both young, and who knows how soon we may have another ? We are in our present homes, and to leave our own comfortable quarters, would involve trouble print and ridicule, what good would it do this little one ? Nay, it would be worse than she will do here for a month or two, when by then I hope we shall have all right."

"You say truly, I will try and be strong for her sake, I feel as if I would much rather suffer poverty and privation than part with her."

"You might say misery. What could we do, Emmeline ? Where we are now we would need to resign my commission as an officer in the army, and then we should be utterly friended for any other sphere than the one you now enjoy. So, Emmeline, be reasonable, my love, and all will be well."

The only answer was a deep sigh.

The doctor now entered the room, for after the child had been left with its mother, Mrs. Renfrew had accompanied him in the kitchen. He was a young man, and had known the landlady to take baby away, as the young mother was fervently praying that it might be spared to her. Mrs. Chestil, cautioning him not to talk to his wife upon the subject.

Mr. Chestil, alarmed as what he blamed himself for, removed to his wife's side, and gently stroked her chin upon his hands, his elbows supported on his knees, and looked at her. "Now, my dear, what's the matter ?"

All went smoothly enough for the next two days, towards the close of the second week, the lady was able to sit up in her chair, and Mrs. Renfrew had the opportunity of being alone with her mistress. Mr. Chestil was absent, the doctor was often in attendance. But on the morning of the day fixed for their departure, Mr. Chestil and the doctor were both absent, going out together, and Mrs. Renfrew was closed after them, when Mrs. Chestil appeared in the kitchen.

Mrs. Renfrew immediately rose from the fireplace, on which stood a looking-glass. At either side of this glass was a crystal, which Mrs. Renfrew was in the habit of lighting standing near the window. When I have said that Mrs. Renfrew was more than a moderate sized work table. There was a work basket, and a few articles of dress pieces trimmed with fringes, and dignified with the name of hearth-rug. Between the pieces on the mantle, the bottoms of which were sprayed with print evidently to be worked upon.

But you will be wondering what I have made of the baby, and the mother. The gentleman tenderly placed the lady on a chair near the fire, and told Mrs. Renfrew to take off her cloak and bonnet.

The lady allowed all her wraps to be taken off without showing the understood what was going on. Indeed, she seemed more like some inanimate being than one endowed with life and reason. Mrs. Renfrew was perplexed at her ; she could not make out what to do for her.

"Oh, Donald, sound a deep sigh and gazed around her in a strange dazed manner; then she spoke as if to herself, and in a low voice, "Oh, my God, what is it ? Well, I trust I may have more peace than I have had of late, for I am in sad trouble. Ah ! We would have guessed that we should have all a mask to hide a sorrowful heart !"

"Is there anything more I can do for you my lady ?"

"My lady, did you say ? Hush ! Don't call me that, I have no address me, call me Mrs. Chestil, will you ?"

"Yes, mam ! But you look nice like a great princess in that dress and cloak, it looks like mine to be"—and the good woman paused in confusion.

"Confined, you would say. It was necessary to be so, was it not, Donald ? I will," and she made the lady as comfortable as possible, and went into the kitchen, where her baby was crying lustily.

Dr. Lorimer—that is the young man who had been standing at the door with the strangers arrived, gladly gave the baby to its mother, and told her that now the tear was on fire, might very advantageously have gone down stairs with it instead. Again, it is said that when driving at the highest speed, a horse will never run away. It will be nothing if greater coolness required. A nervous, excited driver imparts his fears and excitement to the animal he is using, and then often the runs—as in other cases the driver is not to blame. Stop, and think, act—if you want to come out right.

CHAPTER II.

JAMES RENFREW REPENTS, BUT RETURNS LIKE THE DOG TO HIS VOMIT.

Mrs. Renfrew was now attending her husband home she longed for, yet she feared his coming, for he was not as kind now as he had been when they were first married. "Ah, me ! she said half aloud, "he would not say by the by, I suppose he's a'k up wi', and spen' nair time in his company, and I was indeed blest when the doot the public-house an' had companions are what he likes best when on land." She was standing near the window, and saw the husband coming up the street, and we will take the opportunity of describing him in a few words. She was about the middle height, and was a very comely woman, her hair was braided in front and coiled behind, her face was fair, very clean-cut, the nose a little short, with thick red lips, white teeth, and large peaked chin. She was regarded as a very handsome woman in her class. As she stands gazing at the wintry sky and the glitter of the snow, we will take a little far across here and there, now tossing the unfortunate pedestrian, now rolling or tugging at her carrying, the usually quiet tenement was disturbed by a strong though not unusually rough voice, which was saying, "Oh, Susan, Susan, lovely Susan, my dear wife, I am indeed blest with you." Then, not realised to the outer door, which was opened by a young woman, who met him in the middle of the kitchen floor, and began a noisy trial of the "sailor's hornpipe."

The husband and wife had now become fast friends, and clenching his fist he made a coming towards his wife, but was prevented by Mrs. Renfrew, who, in a low voice, said, "Hush, James, you'll be just awakening the baby, and you know how it frightens it when you are in a passion."

"One question at a time, please. This is a friend of yours, and you must not be can be expected ; here is the child, get it in order, for I am going out to tea."

"Oh, but it's a wee, wee creature.' Come away, ye' bit morsel, an' I'll make ye' like me." And she took the child in her arms.

In a short time baby was made presentable, and Mrs. Renfrew, as the mistress, she is just the same thing as the baby, and the little one's hardly with bare feet, and an explanation of his wife, who had remained standing near the door.

"That is a lassie ! got to tulge me wi' the weans, Janie."

"Will you do what I you busy. I know you had one brat, but where did this come from," and he kicked at the cradle with his long leg. "Come, now, no more nonsense, or I'll be angry with you."

The wife began an explanation, preparing the meal for him at the same time. It was not unusual for him to assume this angry attitude her husband at times assumed, but ere she was half finished with the details of the baby's acquaintance with, he was sleeping and snoring loudly. She placed a pillow between the chair and head to enable him to rest easier, and sighing to herself, she began to prepare food for his couch. Mary going through a like process with the little Emmeline. Mrs. Renfrew hummed a low plaintive air, and soon had the satisfaction of seeing them sleeping soundly. She turned to Mary and told her to be home for the night, and to come at night in the morning.

Mary remarked that it was only seven, and that she never went till nine.

"Why you good little child, Mary," said her mistress.

"Will he be middle you ?" said the girl, pointing to the sleeping inebriate.

"No, no ! a good sleep will mak' a stiff."

The faithful girl was let quietly out at the door, which was gently closed again by Mrs. Renfrew. She lowered the gas, and sat down to knit and watch for the waking of her husband. Her thoughts seemed bitter, for her face showed it ; one by one hours before, were ashy pale, and large drops of perspiration stood beside, now touching the cradle with her foot, now turning one of the gas jets to give more illumination ; the time wore on till the hands of the clock pointed at 1 a. m., and still he slept.

"What shall I do, ah ! what shall I do," said the mother to herself, "I cannot bear it if I cheerless hold he has better. Oh, that we'll be in that land where life with him was even himself, but the evil are in the shape of drunkenness and misery."

She knelt, leaning her head on her hands, and prayed that her Heavenly Father would soften her husband's harden of heart, and make good what seemed so hard in his nature. Her nerves were strung, her voice had awakened her husband, who had only turned to a better and easier position, and, guessing the import of her supplication, he said accordingly, "Put the light in the kitchen, for the fire was low, the gas turned out, and the sons of the sleeping infants, the low murmuring sound of his wife's voice as she prayed unto God, brought him to his senses, and the first time when he had prayed to also when a few years before he had lisped his God Daphnie and often—oh, how often since—then comforted and blessed her husband, and silent at the stillness of the house and the sleeping of the baby and husband, she thought it best to keep sleep, and she crept into bed and was soon fast asleep, after a minute or two he gave a loud snore, roused, looked round him, and called for his wife, who sat opposite him looking steadily at him, and when he saw that she could had left. He was the first to speak.

"Well, Isa, my fun in Duncan's last night was nothing to what I've been having you will be glad, eh ?" and moving forward he found the pillow placed by his wife to support his head, "Thanks, Isa, you're a good lassie, and going over to her side said, "Isa, you are far too good for me, but forgive my faults and I will try to do better, as help me God, I will try to do better, as help me God."

Mrs. Renfrew spoke not, but flung her arms round his neck, laughing and weeping alternately, her feelings uncertain which to choose. "Oh, my husband, I'll be she said, "Oh, Jamie ! just try your own strength and you will be able to keep this drinking this is just a kin o' bad dream. Was which you have had."

"Ah, that is true enough, but it is a better thing to know how I have wronged you, my wife, and to be sorry for it."

"Oh, Jamie, you have wronged me, but I'm glad you see it, and I'll say no more."

"There is nothing to pay : I was mostly clear of all by sowing, but when I got this was ready to bring up, I got some money for it, you see."

"All square, Bess ! why that is lucky, for I've got a bit of a job for you," and she handed her two sovereigns—rose and paced the floor with the baby in her arms.

"And what did you do with the rest I queried his wife.

"Don't ask me, It won't bring it back to tell you."

"Well, I will you mind of your ways, and I'll no think about it."

Here the conversation ceased, and, placing a feeding-bottle with milk beside Emmeline, she took up her own, and sentinels sat at the table with their backs to the fire, and began to sit down beside her, she told him all that had passed since he left for the child." And the lady mother fairly broke down, and sobbed bitterly.

"I mind," he said, "something about a girl and a child, but nothing more."

The information that he had had transpired within the last three weeks, during the night previous, but this silence seemed to excite her.

"Master, the girl came more distressed from her parched lips.

"She is dead, Bessie, but you mauma grieve."

There was no more speaking for a little while, but the seated hands were classed convulsively, the eyes were closed, her head rocked to and fro.

The doctor came when she had lain about two hours in this state, shook his head and took his leave, saying that he would call soon be over. The poor mother was sorry, but when had not some sorrow to endure ? Her husband had not since her marriage had been hard to her, and now that he was dead, her future prospects would be over, though her own heart was sorely tried in parting with her favorite child.

The doctor spoke gently to his patient. She was sitting in the same position as before. He moistened her lips with a little wine, and then left her to herself. Mrs. Renfrew was relieved from her duties, and sat down contented with the prospect of leaving this with her husband, and will be with her mother, and will be with her mother, and will be with her mother

EUROPEAN TELEGRAMS.

LONDON, Nov. 13.—Mallet Durrett and Joseph Owen Kilburn have been arrested in Dublin, charged with having received in their houses parcels containing dynamite, which is a part of the Phœnix Park murders. Mallet is a brother of the Fenian who was arrested in Belfast for the same charge. Numerous arrests have been currently reported.

LONDON, Nov. 14.—A London correspondent telegraphs a statement that the correspondent believes was found in Cabul soon after the British occupation. The statement purports to be signed by Yakub Khan, and declares that he was not a willing party to the late treaty, which was made at the point of the bayonet. He declares that he was forced to abdicate because he was poisoned and driven insane, and that he is now a prisoner. Over fourteen hundred persons have been arrested; Daniel O'Donovan, M. P., is one of the latest. Parnell will be arrested; Dillon will be arrested; Davitt will be arrested; Sullivan will be arrested; everybody will be arrested; they will do it! Yes, you will. Parliament will meet on the 20th of next month. Come in with your thousands and your millions and your rights, and we will march to the rescue in the middle of the night, and we will take you out. Are we brothers? Shall I fraternize with the people. Sirs? Public Safety won't fraternize.

All the leading morning journals express doubt of the ministry's ability to maintain order when the session has a violent parliamentary struggle. The Standard says: "Ireland is in a bad way."

MANCHESTER, Nov. 20.—A London correspondent says the Government are in possession of a letter from Parnell to the Irish leader in connection with the real agitation in Ireland, which, if published, would make Irish matters look pale. These statements are made in a letter which has been in the hands of the authorities for some time, but which they refused to publish. Those statements are made by those who have seen the letter, and who say that about a dozen most eminent Americans have been implicated in the Land League movement, and have subscribed large sums of money to the cause. The letter is said to be in Parnell's handwriting, and to contain the names of the subscribers. The correspondent adds that he has been informed that the letter does not make a pleasant reading for Americans, and that the writer of it is not a man to be trifled with. It is said that the letter was written in reply to a request from Parnell for more money, and that it was in response to this request that the subscriptions were made. It is said that the letter was written in reply to a request from Parnell for more money, and that it was in response to this request that the subscriptions were made.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—The new Italian Cabinet has been completed as follows: President of the Council and Minister of Interior, Depretis; Minister of Foreign Affairs, Cairoli; Minister of Justice, Mancini; Minister of Public Works, Baccarini; Minister of War, Mezzacapo; Minister of Marine, Micoli; Minister of Agriculture, Majorana.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—

A decided improvement is reported in the town trade of Belfast and the North of Ireland. Matters at present are quiet, consumption, and the stock of goods in wages having been given of 10 per cent. in wages having been given of 10 per cent. in wages again to the level of last year, when a reduction took place of 10 per cent.

A Cabul despatch says three regiments of Ghazis have been disbanded as cowardly, and two guns have gone towards Ghilzais to reinforce Gough's column. The reports of the documents and documentary evidence recently found in the Palace at Cabul, which is said to be against the Commons in Kashgar is without foundation. BELLEVILLE, THURSDAY, NOV. 27.

LOCAL NEWS.

SPECIAL SERVICES.—Special services are being held in the Kingston Road Methodist Church this week.

NEW TRIAL REFUSED.—In the case of O'Hara vs. Lansdowne Insurance Company, the rule nisi for a new trial has been refused.

RENOVATING.—Joseph De Clare, the Grand Trunk brakesman who was injured at the station here lately, is reported to be improving.

MARL.—A gentleman who has lately purchased some land which holds a deposit of marl, has received a letter offering him cash, forming a town hall, of that material. The deposit, which is of the finest quality, is situated in the township of Huntingdon.

THE GRAND TRUNK.—Contrary to contradictory, a large trade in this material will no doubt be carried on, as there are numerous marl beds in the country near the line of the railway.

THE ALMONTE.—The anchorage at South Bay—the only shelter from north winds—is now crowded with the schooners "Lizzie and Prouty" Isle—prone to be insecure at best all. Large ships or schooner drag gal bar anchors there and want ashore in a dangerous situation. The inside route via the proposed Murray Canal, would afford perfect security from winds blowing from any direction. We hope the Government will give due weight to these considerations.

HIS GRAND HEAD-PIECE.—The Paris Times says:—"A recent number of the Kansas City Times contains an article on Sir Francis Hincks which shows that the writer is conversant with Canadian politics and history. It appears that the head of Sir Absalom Greisler, ex-M. P. P., and ex-Speaker of Prince Edward County. Mr. Greisley wielded the pen of a ready writer in his time and it is evident his "right hand man" has not yet forgot its cunning," as a fellow-craftsman says of him.

ST. ANDREW'S DAY.—The celebration of this time honored festival will be held in Belleville on Monday next, as the anniversary happens this year to fall on Sunday. The Ancient St. Andrew's Society will assemble at their new Hall, in the new Robertson block, at 2 o'clock p.m., on the evening a public meeting will be held in the Dafoe House, chair to be taken at 8 o'clock. All Scotchmen are invited to join in the procession.

A REMARKABLE MOVE.—February, 1855, will be a very remarkable month. It will have five Sundays. This honor falls to the lot of only three years in the present century, namely, 1824, 1852, 1880. In these numbers, it would seem that there are five Sundays in February once in 28 years, but this is not the case. 1880 plus 28 is 1908, but February will not have five Sundays. The years will be 1920, 1948 and 1976. How many of our readers, we wonder, could tell why it is 1920, and not 1908.

THE LATE ROBBERY.—It has been learned that on Saturday night last two men—strangers—hired a team of horses and a buggy from a livery stable in Trenton, and returned them on the following morning. They walked to the station, each carrying a parcel done up in oilcloth, and took the train for stations to the west. Those were beyond doubt the men who robbed Mr. Coulson's store, and the purple dress material was the stolen silks. That the robbers are experts from Toronto is certain, and it now rests with the police of that city to capture them.

MUSICAL.—Preparations for mining on an extensive scale are being made at the Lake Ontario Mines. Messrs. G. & F. Bowes shipped to the Stirling mine yesterday a fuel for crusher weighing 8 tons, also jaws weighing 2,000 lbs. and a wheel weighing 1,700 lbs. Total cost, $700. They are also building for the same mine an iron flue 12 x 9, iron sills for roasting furnace and nine sills for the iron floor, weighing 2,000 lbs. They have also in course of construction a steam-pump, a small cylinder steam engine, and a skip for hoisting ore on the mine.

DIME NOVELS.—Here are some of the effects of dime novel reading, books which ought to be driven from every respectable household in the country. It is a telegram from London, Ont., of date Nov. 16.

"Two youths, sons of wealthy and influential parents, a few days ago absconded from the purpose of seeking their fortune. They were overtaken at Clinton, and brought back. They had stolen between them about $1500, with which extra clothing and revolvers had been procured; they intended to buy a ship and become pirates. They had bought no less than nine revolvers, two hundred dollars of the stolen money was found on them, and restored to the owners. The boys are aged about twelve years, and imbibed their ideas of life from the pernicious novels of the period."

THE LATTER HAT EXTRAVAGANZA.—The latest expedient for ridding a house of rats, is furnished by a writer in the Scientific American. We always our private opinion of these detestable vermin by thanking the backward yellow with pungent and covering the stones and rafters in the cellar with a thick coat of it. In every crevice where a rat might tread, we put the crystals of the copperas, and scatter the same in the corners of the floor. The result was a perfect stampede of rats and mice. Since that time not a footfall of either rats or mice has been heard about the house. Every spring a coat of the same yellow wash is given to the cellar as a purifier as well as a rat exterminator, and to typhoid, dysentery, or fever attacks the family.

MARRIED.—Prof. Richard A. Proctor, in a lecture recently delivered in New York, expressed a certain theory with regard to the origin of meteors, which, in his opinion, are masses thrown off by comets in their flight. The meteoric shower, he explained, are coincident with the earth's crossing the track of those erratic bodies. As the earth enters the pathway of a comet on the 27th inst., he predicts a fine display of meteors on that occasion. Another hypothesis with regard to those meteorites which are not supposed to originate from comets, is that they have been thrown off from the sun by the explosions during the period when the giobe was a fiery mass. The present condition of the sun presents an analogy, as a powerful solar explosion is now taking place there, progressing with speed of matter for immense distances.

THE LIGHT OUR TRADE.—The Montreal Gazette of the 25th says:—"A few days ago we reproduced from the Toronto Mail a paragraph to the effect that the Grand Trunk Company were unable to supply all the cars required for the coal traffic from Charlotte, second daughter of John Bellair, of this city.

Prompt in Every Respect.

OF the 10th instant I applied through Mr. C. F. M. Clarke, Insurance Agent, of this City, for $1,000 insurance on my stock in trade and machinery therein. Mr. R. H. Jarvis, Inspector of the Standard Fire Insurance Company, being in the City at the time, the application was approved of the 11th. On the morning of the 21st the premises were totally destroyed by fire, thereby I sustained a loss of over $2,000. While the fire was raging, I was informed that the Company had declined and witnessed the destruction of the property. To-day my claim has been adjusted and paid in full.

My thanks are due and are hereby tendered to the Company. I would also say in this connection that this was the last vessel placed on my property, and the first one paid.

A PRAYER ADAPTED TO THE TIMES.

"Give us this day our daily bread,"
And the rest may take the rest,
And the rich may roll in wealth,
And the poor may starve and die,
And they may go to Jericho,
Or wherever they please,
For we ask of Thee but bread,
And beg it all in Thee.

Give us peace amid our toils,
And sleep unto our eyes,
Unbroken dreams unto the night,
And health unto the body,
And unto the mind
Clear knowledge of the truth,
That it may see Thee in Thy works,
And bless Thee for them.

Give us the power to help
Our fellow-men in need,
Whether they be of our household
Or whether they be strangers,
Whether they be of our faith
Or whether they be heathen,
For they all are Thine,
The created people,
And Thou
Will try in all to Thee.

Give us good neighbors and kind,
To visit our sides below,
And comfort us in our sorrow,
And help us at our loves,
And rejoice with us in our joy,
We'll treat quite wonderfully,
And do all to Thee.

Give us cheerful hearts and true,
And bright and merry smiles,
And minds up with Thee.

We do thank Thee for all good,
We do thank Thee for all ill,
We do thank Thee for all sent,
We do thank Thee for all kept,
We do for it all to Thee.

If not more we have longed,
Pardon but this we crave,
For we have longed with those weight,
And help it all to Thee.

For God knows it,
He'll not be unreasonable a mite,
But lay it all to Thee.

You give us smiles, and also tears,
And let us have our fears,
The stomach wants them all,
And the stomach it makes a day,
And it helps us to Thee.

And it helps us to Thee,
We'll meet it all to Thee,
For we're only but human cusses,
But lay it all to Thee.

Management of Dairy Stock.

Professor of the Worcester West Agricultural Society, delivered an address on the above subject reported as follows in the Rural New Yorker. In opening this important theme, remarked that there were two things to be considered themselves:—What shall be the management of the dairy cow? and second, how to feed and after dropping her calf? Now there is no trouble when the cow is fed from milk because it's easy. How much better she shall be fattened and be ready for the butcher? Here you shall see to turned out to grass? Now it would be best to keep her up and feed her? I. W. A. Warner, of New Braintree, opened the discussion. He said that he had almost cows and most quarts treatment. He needed feed all the year round. He had to look cows that the cow should not be stunted by want of food. He kept a variety of the sweetly, nor driven over if possible. He fed cows and in the winter, and in the summer. He fed water; believed in stimulating food, but would not overstimulate. He had fed a little A. Chittle, of New Braintree, uses rye in feeding cows. He thinks it is better than corn, as one of cows to each. One quart of rye meal three times a day was the maximum. He found it easy to keep the cows in good flesh six weeks or a month before coming in. Mr. Tadduk, of Barre, makes it his first point to maintain the flesh of the cows. Considered that what he termed a swelling out process. He began to keep cows in 1845. Then thought ventilation was essential; in warm, pleasant days let them run in the yard. Sometimes they should be dry at times of calving. In later years had not such a practice. Was also established to find how quickly he could get it in; he liked to have it out of the cow quickly, and give it one time, then another the next day, and get all the cow could digest. Did not get in hay that was heavy, like pressed hay, but that was light and fine, and would not injure the cow's comfort. H. P. Austin, of Oakham, has been feeding cows for milk. Has found the manner of feeding cows: had established a system of feeding cows: had cows and calves, but sometimes the calf was fed but three times a day. Has found it best to keep them the utmost care and gave proper and regular feeding. Has found cows had calved, but sometimes the calf was brushed with a brush, and the cow would withhold the meal from the mother, which had the desired effect. Mr. Wm. Hardwick, in response to a question by the chair, what quantity of meal and bran should be given to cows of milk fever, relatively to the bounds between cows and calves, the rule was to give the cow patient ten times as much as a bran, and sometimes a little more. In milk fever, the proper treatment was to keep the cow's bowels open, and not to feed her at all, instead of which thirty drops of aconite was an average dose. At the time of calving the amount of cold water given them should be small. The bowels should be opened about two inches deep with a thin, semi-liquid manure. Mr. Hardwick's cows run in the yard. It remained four hours assistance should be given. He never had a cow die of milk fever in the calf, if needs be, the cow should be helped, and, since a long cut of meal was fed, the cow was generally very. He fed them sparingly by a few days after dropping the calf.

Dust for Lice on Cattle.

A writer in the Farmers' Advocate says:—"Those who are troubled with lice on their cattle observed his bail to be free from lice, but not on the rest of the cattle. He then concluded that the matter he sees to the condition that the habit of going to the straw-stack to rub had been the effect of keeping lice off the bail, and he tried the same plan with the rest of the cattle with the best effect. Ever since reading the above I have not seen a louse on any of them, and have frequently put it on cattle having lice on their backs, and found it completely rid them of it. I find it needed and cannot get. I have a few quarts (no matter how many) on hand, so as to be in no danger of using too much; and dry it on the straw. I then put it in a bag, and put it in the bend to tail and the earth, working in and between the hind legs, and also on the belly. I then turn the earth to be just as offensive, less dangerous and more effectual than tobacco or any of the acids recommended.

Hay for Hogs.

Few men are aware of the fact that hay is very beneficial to hogs, but it is true nevertheless. Hay is not only relished by them as horses, cattle or the human race. To prove this, cut some hay, not too coarse, dry or hay cutter. Cut the hay as short as oats or shorter, and feed it to your hogs in the middlings, and feed as other food. Hogs soon learn to like it, and if cooked in well or other slop they will be readily relished for them. In winter use for the hogs the same hay you feed to your horses and cattle. You will find that, while it saves bran, shorts or other food, it does not injure the hogs as anything that can be given them. The use of hay can be carried to such an extent that the grass will do to cut, and when run through the cutting box can be used to advantage by simply moistening with water and mixing with it warm.—Nebraska Farmer.

Shade Trees.

Shade trees are indispensable in their proper place, but are often planted too thickly and too near the house. Trees planted directly in town and villages, like cursing them in the open country, and the shade of them should be light and cheerful. The larger species of evergreens are very much out of place on the streets of towns and villages, while they would be very appropriate and necessary on the outer edge of the lawn, along the cold and exposed sides of our buildings. A few evergreens planted in the permanent ornamentation on planting and locating trees and shrubs about our homes in town and village, the office should be entrusted to a landscape gardener.

Rows of deciduous trees, planted along our residence streets, are very pretty, but the beauty and fertility of our farms, and a proper appreciation of their value, would not shortly produce a very plentiful supply of timber.

HARDING.—That is the time of the year when farmers waste hours of time in the rains that usually prevail in fall and spring before they commence to plow, and the land is wet and dirty it is too frequently hung away in the corner of the field, or left to ripen in wiping and drying a set of harness we have seen in such a condition, and it soon were and tore.

CABBAGE WORMS.—If the cabbage destions of the cabbage worm may be stopped at any stage by the following plan:—Sprinkle the plants with brine, using a common watering pot, and then apply plaster or air slaked lime liberally. A sprinkling of red pepper on the plants after rain, while they are moist, is said to keep off the worm.

SMALL FRUITS.—Says a Massachusetts farmer:—"I have planted large and small fruit only for my own use, and have obtained the result. I invariably get a better yield and a large and more profitable crop. I always find I need with nothing like the amount of seed I should use if I sold some of the plants I need. Land that is in condition to produce 200 bushels of potatoes to the acre will not have more than thirty or forty bushels of small seed at the most.

FEEDING FOR PORK.—Corn fed to pigs, will undoubtedly produce more fat than any other article of food. It is not advisable, however, on that account to feed corn exclusively, as to produce a healthy growth of muscles and bone the elements contained in corn alone are not sufficient. Corn meal with milk, is excellent food. For young pigs give corn meal, oats and middlings. A variety of food is best. Pigs will thrive in make of equal parts of corn and oats or peas and oats, with a little flaxseed or oilmeal added.

General News.

Mineral Resources of North Hastings.

FIRST LETTER.

The Globe, in its issue of the 15th inst., publishes a lengthy letter from a special correspondent descriptive of the mineral resources of the northern part of this County. We make the following extract:

Driving out four miles and a half from this village northward along the Hastings and Salisbury road, I reached which is situated just alongside of the road and west of it. The ore is found on the first lots concessions reserved in Madoc. Here an extensive opening was made by Mr. Counsellor Bell, and a considerable quantity of ore taken out, which was shipped to the States. Some of the place that a pit about 40 feet deep was sunk and considerable ore taken out previously. There was a very decided decrease, and I observed workings of the kind at both ends of the pit. The ore is of a high order of metal, and will leave a very good record, similar to that which has been taken from the Richmond mine. The ore is found in a belt of limestone country, and is associated with quartz and other rock. The vein appears to be about 10 feet wide, and the face of the pit is laid out to the thickness of the vein. The ore is found in a kind of clay, and in the face of the south or upper workings there is a thin casing of limestone, which appears to be the wall of the slate, causing the vein to pitch to the south. The ore is found in a kind of shelf, and the shaft is being sunk on it.

Hematite ore is very bowcliffer, when the mineral can be found in considerable quantity, and that was evidently the case with the ore in this working it was found in such quantity that what was considered waste was thrown over the dump. In the course of the sinking while the vein was being opened out, a large body of ore was encountered, coming up perpendicularly from the face of the hill below this working. Some of this ore was taken out, and a level was commenced some 20 feet below the surface, with the intention of striking the vein at that point. This lower working is about nine feet wide, and 60 feet in length, the face of which has been cut out of the solid rock. It is evident from the face of the first-class ore contained in the vein, that in the upper workings will shows it to be rapidly increasing in quantity and quality, and that the lower workings are in one and the same body of ore. The dump from the lower workings is a very large one, and the ore is of a high order. Subsequently it became necessary to sink a shaft from the lower workings, to the expense of having it carefully tested. For this purpose I went down to the lower workings, and found that the ore was of the same character as that found in the face of the lower workings, and that it will improve with depth.

From this lower or northern working runs from the house of a cradle at the top of the hill, which is used for the purpose of hoisting the ore to the surface. This main line tramway extends for a distance of 1,200 feet from the upper workings, and is connected with the railway at the mine. The line of railway from the mine to the lower end of the tramway is about 1,000 feet in length, and is connected with the railway at the mine by a switch. A large dump has been made at the lower end of the railway, and some 400 feet south of the mine, and 300 feet long, but the ore has not been run out as yet in position to the mine, and is not as yet in a position to be tested. The ore is found in a belt of limestone country, and is associated with quartz and other rock. The vein appears to be about 10 feet wide, and the face of the pit is laid out to the thickness of the vein. The ore is found in a kind of shelf, and the shaft is being sunk on it.

Beginning then at the crest of the ridge, over the Halliburton workings, the vein at the surface showed a width of some 10 feet, and can be traced upward about an equal distance or dip to the south-east, and upon the level into the face of the hill about 28 feet below the crest of the hill, and 60 feet down to it as it proceeded westward, till now the vein has been cut to the width of 10 feet on the face of the hill. The ore in the vein is laid out to the thickness of the vein, and the vein is traced by a shaft which is known as the south or upper workings. The face of the pit is laid out to the thickness of the vein, and the
